Datums.com
Derivatives Ai Translations of Uploaded Multimedia Sources

Podcast Title: Beyond the Smokescreen: Trump, Putin, and the Global Power Network Host: Edward Slavsquat Guest: Iurie Rosca, Moldovan journalist-in-exile

---

Edward Slavsquat: Welcome back to the program. I am joined once again by Iurie Rosca, a Moldovan journalist who is currently living in exile. Since our last discussion in early 2024, Iurie has been sentenced in absentia in Moldova in what he describes as a politically motivated witch hunt orchestrated by the current administration. Despite these precarious circumstances, he has agreed to help us peel back the layers of global geopolitics.

Iurie, in our previous talk, you described Vladimir Putin not as a patriot or a monster, but as a careerist with a "merchant mentality". Even now, years into the conflict, Russia continues to pay Kiev for gas transit and supplies the U.S. with enriched uranium. Is this "business as usual" approach still the driving force behind Russia's strategy to settle the war with Washington?

Iurie Rosca: To understand Russia, you must realize that the head of state does not truly govern. The country is controlled by private entities, big business, and a clique of oligarchs who dominate energy and banking. This network is largely tied to Israeli influence, with its representatives embedded deep within the Kremlin's state structures and media apparatus. The image of Putin as an all-powerful dictator is merely a smokescreen for an oligarchic regime that has usurped power from the Russian people.

Since 1991, Russia has been absorbed into the neoliberal paradigm of the West, where politics is subordinate to economics. As they say in The Godfather, it is "nothing personal, just business". This is why the Kremlin consistently betrays its supposed allies in the "axis of resistance," from Libya and Syria to Iran.

Edward Slavsquat: That merchant mentality seems evident in recent developments. In February 2025, Putin even suggested cooperating with American companies to extract natural resources in East Ukraine.

Iurie Rosca: Precisely. If Russia were truly seeking a military victory, there would be a total mobilization of the economy and conscripts. Instead, the Russian economy and high-society entertainment continue as if there is no war, while the actual fighting is done by paid contractors and mercenaries rather than a regular patriotic army.

Furthermore, by accepting the U.S. President as a mediator, Moscow has signaled its subordination to Washington. The reality is that the U.S. uses the "Zionist regime in Kiev" as a proxy to deplete Russia's resources—a strategy inherited from the British Empire. Russia is currently caught in a "double vassal" relationship: it has been economically colonized by China while remaining politically subservient to Washington.

Edward Slavsquat: Let's look at the people at the negotiating table. Who is actually brokering this peace?

Iurie Rosca: The U.S. delegation is led by Jared Kushner and Steve Witkoff, who are real estate developers and affiliates of the Hasidic sect Chabad-Lubavitch rather than professional diplomats. Putin's envoy is Kirill Dmitriev, a man educated in the U.S. who worked for major American corporations. These men represent international big business, not the national interests of their respective states.

Edward Slavsquat: What about the Special Military Operation (SMO)? Many in the "alternative media" claim Russia has already won.

Iurie Rosca: The stated goals have not been achieved, but the hidden goals of the puppet masters have. The war has successfully resulted in the depopulation and destruction of both Russia and Ukraine. The conflict serves as a catalyst for the UN 2030 Agenda, aiming to establish a global technocratic tyranny—a digital GULAG. This follows the occult principle of Solve et coagula ("dissolve and coagulate") to build a New World Order.

Edward Slavsquat: You have also been very critical of the "Axis of Resistance." Does it even exist?

Iurie Rosca: We must be direct: Donald Trump is a puppet of the Israeli lobby, and Putin is a spokesman for that same lobby. Zionist networks heavily infiltrated Russia after the fall of communism, penetrating the media and the economy. This is why Russia remains impotent when its allies are attacked; its foreign policy is subordinate to international Zionism. Key figures in Putin's circle, such as Roman Abramovich and Chief Rabbi Berel Lazar, represent this influence.

Edward Slavsquat: Finally, Iurie, you mentioned your own legal battle. What is the current status of your situation in Moldova?

Iurie Rosca: I have been targeted since 1989. Most recently, I was sentenced to six years in prison—later changed to four years of enforceable imprisonment—on trumped-up charges of "trafficking in influence". This order came from President Maia Sandu, who I believe represents the Soros network in Moldova. I am currently in a safe location outside the country, but I will not give up my struggle as a journalist and editor.

Edward Slavsquat: Thank you, Iurie. Your perspective provides a stark contrast to the standard narratives found in both mainstream and alternative media.

Analogy for Understanding: To understand Iurie Rosca's view of global politics, imagine a professional wrestling match. To the audience, the two wrestlers in the ring (Trump and Putin) appear to be bitter enemies locked in a life-or-death struggle. However, behind the curtain, both performers are actually employees of the same promoter (the global financial and lobbyist elite). The "fight" is a scripted spectacle designed to distract the audience while the promoter collects the ticket money and reorganizes the stadium (the global economy) for their own benefit.